تاراج ایران یا خانه دار شدن مردم!؟

از یک طرف مردم و به خصوص قشر جوان از نداشتن خانه و بالا بودن اجاره ها شکایت می کنند و از طرف دیگر معمار ها و دست اندر کاران ساخت و ساز خانه از رکود چند ساله در این بازار شکایت دارند. چطور می شود که در بازاری عرضه و تقاضا هر دو وجود داشته باشد اما رکود حکم فرما شود!؟

پس از رشد بی سابقه قیمت مسکن در سال گذشته، انتظارات بر این بود که قیمت این کالا در سال جاری با توجه به کاهش شدید قدرت خرید مردم و رشد بالایی که بهای مسکن در سال ۹۷ تجربه کرده، افزایش نیابد، اما اهر چه به تابستان که فصل خرید و فروش خانه و نقل و انتقال مستاجران است نزدیک شدیم انگار انتظارات بر عکس عمل کرد.

از آنجایی که میزان عرضه و تقاضا مهمتر از آن شاخص نرخ تورم فاکتور های اصلی تعیین قیمت ها هستند، بنابراین در شرایط کنونی که ...

Bazaar House-Museum: Must-See Site in Downtown Tehran

The House-Turned-Museum of Bazaar, which once used to be the house of Sultan Beigom Shojaaee – the sister-in-law of the last Qajar King, Ahmad Shah – is one of the 1001 must-see libraries in the world.

The 150-year-old house has been built on a 700sqm land in the southern Pamenar neighborhood of the capital city.

According to historical documents, the house dates back to the last years of Qajar dynasty. It belonged to Sultan Beigom Shojaaee the wife of Mohammad Reza Shojaul-Mamalek, a royal musketeer during Qajar dynasty.

The yard of the house resembles a small garden. It has been built 15 steps lower than the level of the alley in which it is located. There is a rectangular pond at the yard's centre. It is besieged from three sides with buildings with brick view and wooden windows.

The wind-catchers of the building stand above the Mirror Hall at the centre of the western building. The mirrors and the gypsum walls are covered by paintings inspired by some European images. Meanwhile, the paintings behind the glasses as well as the ceilings are painted in a way that give the impression of wooden frames. The wooden doors also reveal the perfect aesthetics of the architect.

But the most exciting part of the house is its library which is home to over 6,000 books with various themes from history to architecture, tourism and so on. As certified by International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions (IFLA) the house has been named as one of the top 1001 beautiful libraries in the world due to its closeness to the Mirror Hall.

Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque, a famous masterpiece of Iranian architecture

About Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque

Most of the landmarks in Isfahan have been formed during the Safavid Era. Actually, since they chose Isfahan as their capital, it was this dynasty which made this city so popular. One of the masterpieces of this period is the Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque which is located in Naghshe Jahan Square, right in front of the Ali Qapu Palace, which was one of the first palaces built in this city.

Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque is not just a mosque, it is an art. Its construction started in 1603 under the order of Shah Abbas the first, and it took 18 years to complete. Shah Abbas ordered to build this mosque right in front of his official palace and it became one of the four popular monuments of the Naghshe Jahan Square and one of the most significant landmarks of Isfahan.

Why is Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque So Important?

Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque is one of the architectural and tiling masterpieces in the world which has been made in the 16th. Unlike other mosques, this mosque doesn't have any minarets.

It is located in the square which is itself a world heritage site. Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque has the most circular dome in the world which is also one of the most beautiful ones. The dome of this mosque turns into three different colors during the day under different lights. They are pink, gray, and earth colors.

Brief History about Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque

Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque is not just a mosque, it is an art. Its construction started in 1603 under the order of Shah Abbas the first, and it took 18 years to complete. Shah Abbas ordered to build this mosque right in front of his official palace and it became one of the four popular monuments of the Naghshe Jahan Square and one of the most significant landmarks of Isfahan.

First of all, the mosque was created for the king and the royal court. Therefore, no one could enter it for almost a century. Since Shah Abbas didn't want to walk the square to this mosque, a hidden tunnel was built from Ali Qapu Palace to the mosque. However, it is not possible to visit the tunnel today as the passage is not in use any more.

Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque Features

The Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque is an extraordinary mosque. First of all, unlike any other mosques, it doesn't have any minarets.

Minarets

The history of using minarets dates back to the pre-Islamic era. At that time, minarets were used to find directions. Because many buildings had minarets and it was a sign of a city, anyone who saw minarets could find out that a city is on the way. But during the Islamic era, the minarets were just used for the mosques. So anyone who entered a city could find the mosque more easily.

But as mentioned before, the Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque was used just by the royals so it wasn't for the public people. Therefore, since they couldn't use it, there was no need for them to find this mosque. In fact, this mosque didn't need any minarets.

Courtyard

Compared to other mosques, this mosque also has another difference. There is no courtyard or interior iwans in this mosque. To keep the symmetry of the square, the designer of this mosque decided not to include any courtyard. So when you enter the mosque there is a passage that leads you to the main hall.

Qibla

In the Islamic-Iranian architecture, when people enter the Shabistan they are faced to the Qibla. But as the entrance of this mosque is on the east side of the square, it was not possible to design it this way. Therefore, to solve this problem, Mohammad Reza Isfahani, who was the architect of this monument, created an L-shaped connection between the entrance and the enclosure so that when people enter the mosque they turn 45 degrees and when they enter the Shabistan they are faced to the qibla.

Peacock on Ceiling

Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque has a beautiful dome. As mentioned earlier, it has one of the most circular shapes. Moreover, the interior side of the dome, which is visible from the main hall, has one of the most unique decorations which is like a peacock who has opened his colorful tail. You should stand in the center of the hall right under the dome to see how extraordinary this decoration is.

The Walls and Windows

When you go inside the Sheikh Lotfollah

Mosque, you can see walls which are decorated with colorful mosaic tiles. There are some words from the Quran written on the walls. The windows are on top, so they have different lights throughout the day. For example, when the sun lights in the morning, the light comes from the eastern window and will shine the western wall which has special words about the sunlight. And after the sunset, it will light through the western window on the eastern wall and show another special word from the Quran.

The Entrance Gate

The mosque has a 400-year old gate which was built by plane tree wood. There is an inscription on the top of the door which was written by Alireza Abbasi, who was the special calligrapher of Shah Abbas. It is also decorated with azure tiles.

Places nearby Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque
As the mosque is located in Naghshe Jahan Square, it is close to many other tourist attractions such as Ali Qapu, and Shah Mosque which are just a few steps away from this place. Moreover, the square itself is another great tourist attraction in Isfahan which is also one of the landmarks of Isfahan which has been registered in UNESCO World Heritage Sites. The main bazaar of Isfahan is also at the same place so after visiting this religious attraction you can easily go to the bazaar and find the greatest souvenirs from Isfahan. There are also many great cafés and restaurants around this place which makes your day trip to the Naghshe Jahan Square more enjoyable.

How to get to Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque

Most of the time, there is no need to take a taxi or bus to this place as there are many great hotels near it. The greatest of all is the Abbasi Hotel which itself is a tourist attraction. It is just 2 km away from this place and can be reached on foot in 20 minutes. The Hasht Behesht Hotel is another great hotel in Isfahan which even closer than the Abbasi Hotel. The distance between the Hasht Behesht Hotel and the Sheikh Lotfollah Mosque is only 1.4 km and can be reached on foot in 15 minutes.

Media: India concerned over rising oil prices

India on Friday expressed concern over developments in the Strait of Hormuz impacting oil prices and sought Saudi Arabia's active role to keep the rates at reasonable levels, Times Of India reported.

According to Times Of India, Brent oil on Thursday jumped about 5 percent, the most since January, and is now trading near $65 a barrel. This comes after tensions ran high in the region after US President Donald Trump approved and then later called off military strikes against Tehran following shooting down of an American Navy drone over the strait by Iranian forces.

Times Of India added in its news that Indian Oil minister Dharmendra Pradhan discussed the situation with Saudi counterpart Khalid Al Falih, "Expressed concern on the developments in the Strait of Hormuz leading to rising crude oil price."

About a quarter of the world's LNG and about one-fifth of the world's oil transits through the Iranian territorial waters at Strait of Hormuz, the narrow waterway.

"Discussed about Saudi interests in the energy sector in India to further bolster our bilateral ties. Also reviewed with Khalid al-Falih the progress of Saudi investments in India's refining & petrochemical sectors.

India is 83 percent dependent on imports to meet its oil needs and is reliant on nations like the UAE to meet half of cooking gas (LPG) needs.

Labor min: US sanctions violate rights of workers and women

Iran's Minister Labor Mohammad Shariatmadari on Saturday protested to the United States over its arbitrary sanctions on Iran, saying that the US Administration is accountable for crimes against humanity by violating the rights of Iranian workers and women.

He made the remarks in his tweet account to mark the 100th anniversary of foundation of the International Labor Organization in Geneva.

In a bitter criticism of the US sanctions on Iranian economy, Shariatmadari said that the US anti-human sanctions violate the rights of the workers and women losing their jobs.

The 108th meeting of the international body of labor took place on June 10-21 with the participation of the representatives of governments, labor groups, and employers at the ILO headquarters in Geneva.

On the sidelines of the event, Shariatmadari met with his Syrian, Bulgarian, Malaysian, and Azerbaijani counterparts to share experience and discuss cooperation. Meanwhile, the labor ministers from the Asia-Pacific Group of the ILO (ASPAG) elected Shariatmadari as the chairman.

He added that the voice of Iranian workers will be louder from now on.

Official: Iran's airspace safe for flights

Head of Iran Civil Aviation Organization announced that Iran's airspace is safe for all flights, adding that all flights are underway normally.

Ali Abedzadeh said Iran's airspace is safe both in Persian Gulf and inside the country and all foreign airlines continue their flights through Iranian airspace.

He added that flights through Iran's airspace have not decreased.

He went on to say that over the last two years, in the wake of tensions in the region, and thanks to the security in Iranian airspace the number of flights in Iran's skies increased to over 1,000 per day.

He noted that no foreign airliner have issued statement to Iran Civil Aviation Organization as regard changing routes and its avoidance to fly in Iran's skies, Abedzadeh reiterated.

FATF Gives Iran until Oct. to Complete Reforms

The Financial Action Task Force (FATF) said Iran had until October to meet international standards against money-laundering and terror financing. It said on Friday that it was for now keeping counter-measures against Iran suspended with the exception for a call to all countries to increase supervisory examination of Iranian banks' branches and subsidiaries, Reuters reported. If by October Iran had not met international norms, the FATF said it would require scrutiny of transactions with Iran and tougher external audits of financial firms operating in Iran. European signatories of the 2015 nuclear deal between Tehran and world powers have asked Iran to join the FATF before a new payment mechanism, officially called the Instrument in Support of Trade Exchanges (INSTEX), takes force. Iranian critics of INSTEX say the Europeans have conditioned its implementation to Iran joining the FATF. The FATF's proponents have said the measure would smooth the path for Iran's increased financial transactions with the rest of the world and help remove the country from investment blacklists. Opponents, however, say membership in the FATF will only make the country vulnerable to outside meddling.

Iran not to let US intrude into its territory: FM spokesperson

Iranian Foreign Ministry Spokesman Abbas Mousavi said that Iran will not allow the United States to violate the country's territory. "Regardless of any decision made by the United States, we will not allow any act of intrusion into the Islamic Republic territory, and we are ready to confront any threat to the integrity of the Islamic Republic of Iran," he told Tasnim News Agency on Saturday. The remarks came as US President Donald Trump claimed on Friday that he had called off a strike against Iranian sites because they were not proportional to downing a drone by the IRGC, which had violated the Iranian airspace.

"Our decisions are not subject to their [US] decisions and we will confront aggression whether they level threats or not," Mousavi added. IRGC said Thursday that a US-made Global Hawk surveillance drone was brought down by its Air Force near the Kouh-e Mobarak region, which sits in the central district of Jask County, after the aircraft violated Iranian airspace. Despite US claims that the drone had been flying over international waters, Iran says it has retrieved sections of drone in its own territorial waters where it was shot down. Foreign Minister Zarif said in a tweet hours after the incident that Iran would "take this new aggression to UN & show that the US is lying about international waters." Elsewhere in his remarks, Mousavi also pointed to Iran's reduction of commitments under the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), saying that if European parties to the deal fail to honor their obligations, Iran will take the second step 'stronger'. "And we have announced what our next step would be," he added. On May 8, exactly a year after the US pulled out from the JCPOA, Iran revealed countermeasures to US' withdrawal, giving the other remaining parties to the JCPOA 60 days to comply with their commitments, particularly those regarding Iran's economic interests in the banking and energy sectors, before reducing portions of its own commitments to the agreement stage by stage.

EU expects Iran to fully implement nuclear deal; Federica Mogherini

European Union foreign policy chief Federica Mogherini in an exclusive note wrote for ILNA news agency about reducing Iran's commitments to the nuclear deal and a rise in tension in the Persian Gulf and the Gulf of Oman.

She wrote, "The interest we have is to keep the nuclear deal in place. It is not an easy exercise; we never made a mystery out of it." She continued that a lot of work we have done with the Member States to put in place mechanisms that can allow the Iranians to benefit from the economic transactions that can legitimately take place.

The full text of Mogherini's note follows:

Let me start by saying very clearly that our assessment on the implementation of the nuclear deal has never been, is not and will never be based on statements but on the evaluation that the IAEA [the International Atomic Energy Agency] makes, the reports that the IAEA produces. They can be done at any time, because we base our assessments and our judgments on facts, on the verification mechanisms that are in place and that we trust. Announcements are relevant elements of political dialectics, but our assessment on the implementation of the agreement is based on the factual, technically sound assessment and evaluation that the IAEA makes in its reports. And so far Iran has been compliant with its nuclear commitments as we had expected it to be, as we had encouraged it to be. And the majority of the international community together with us has cooperated with Iran in helping this implementation to continue. If the IAEA assessments and reports will change, we will assess the situation further, but so far our assessment is based on the technical reports of the IAEA, which also means that I would not elaborate on what happens if and when. Iran is still compliant and we strongly hope, encourage, and expect that Iran continues to comply with its commitments under the JCPOA in full. The interest we have is to keep the nuclear deal in place. It is not an easy exercise; we never made a mystery out of it. During the last year, it has become increasingly difficult for all to keep the nuclear deal fully implemented. This has been our constant focus as Europeans, as the European Union, myself personally, as I have a responsibility in coordinating the work of the Joint Commission [of the JCPOA]. Our focus is to keep the agreement in place and keep the implementation of it. And this includes, as you know, a lot of work we have done with the Member States, in particular the E3 [France, Germany and the United Kingdom] but also others, to put in place mechanisms that can allow the Iranians to benefit from the economic transactions that can legitimately take place. This is all part of our effort to keep an agreement in place that so far has prevented Iran from developing a nuclear weapon - and this is our goal. So we will keep our focus on this objective. As you know very well, the European Union relies on the intelligence that Member States share with us. We do not have sources of intelligence of our own - is a very strong element of concern for the risk of miscalculation or unintentional escalation that could occur in a region that is already at the limit of the stress test, I would say. A common approach that is that of trying to focus all our action and all our diplomatic work to try to avoid an escalation and actually help de-escalating, because what we would not like to see is a military escalation in the region. We think that would be extremely dangerous and definitely not positive, neither for anyone in the region nor for Europe nor for the rest of the world. So beyond the assessment of the responsibilities, Iran is angry but the call is for maximum restraint and de-escalation that we believe is in the interest of everybody every one should respect international rules and sovereignty of countries.

Let me start by saying very clearly that our assessment on the implementation of the nuclear deal has never been, is not and will never be based on statements but on the evaluation that the IAEA [the International Atomic Energy Agency] makes, the reports that the IAEA produces.

Iran rejects Reuters report on receiving Trump's message via Oman

Iran's Supreme National Security Council (SNSC) has dismissed a report by Reuters claiming that US President Donald Trump has sent a message to Iran via Oman. "The US has sent no letter to Iran through Oman," SNSC spokesman Keivan Khosravi told the Islamic Republic of Iran Broadcasting (IRIB) on Friday.

"This issue is not true at all," he added. Earlier in the day, Reuters quoted Iranian officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, as saying that Tehran had received a message from President Trump warning that a US attack on Iran was imminent but saying he was against war and wanted talks on a range of issues. News of the message, said to be delivered through Oman overnight, came shortly after the New York Times said Trump had approved military strikes against Iran before dawn Friday over the downing of a US spy drone but pulled back from launching them at the last minute. The paper cited military and diplomatic officials as saying that the US president had initially approved attacks on a handful of Iranian targets, like radar and missile batteries. President Trump approved strikes against Iran before dawn Friday but abruptly pulled back from launching them, the New York Times reports. "The operation was underway in its early stages when it was called off," the Times said, citing what it called a senior administration official.

Iran to start 2nd phase of reducing commitments under JCPOA on July 7: Zarif

Iranian Foreign Minister, Mohammad Javad Zarif announced that Iran will start second phase of reducing its commitments under the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA) on July 7, 2019.

Zarif made the remarks after a meeting with his Turkish counterpart Mevlut Cavusoglu in Isfahan. Following the meeting, Cavusoglu and Zarif signed a plan meant to strengthen cooperation in bilateral, regional, and international relations.

Underlining that Iran's two-month ultimatum to Europe is going to be expired, he said that "we will announce our next step to Mrs. Mogherini and other JCPOA members via a letter."

"The first phase of the measure was kicked off on May 8 and the second phase will be started on July 7," Iranian foreign minister went on to say.

On May 8, Iran announced a partial withdrawal from some aspects of the pact, giving the other remaining parties to the JCPOA 60 days to comply with their commitments, particularly those regarding Iran's economic interests in the banking and energy sectors, before reducing portions of its own commitments to the agreement stage by stage.

US must own up to its spying activities: senior MP

The US' drone intrusion into Iranian airspace was in violation of international regulations and the US must shoulder the responsibility of such a blatant act of aggression, senior parliamentary official Alaeddin Boroujerdi said Saturday.

A member of Iran's Parliament National Security and Foreign Policy Commission, Alaeddin Boroujerdi, condemned the intrusion of a US spy drone into the Iranian airspace, saying "the United Arab Emirates or any other country that has provided US with military bases and allows Washington to use its territories to invade the Iranian borders must know that they are complicit in this aggression and must take responsibility for it." IRGC said Thursday that a US-made Global Hawk surveillance drone was brought down by its Air Force near the Kouh-e Mobarak region, which sits in the central district of Jask County, after the aircraft violated Iranian airspace. Despite US claims that the drone had been flying over international waters, Iran says it has retrieved sections of drone in its own territorial waters where it was shot down.

Shamkhani Clarifies Why Obama Deserved Response from Iran, Trump Does Not

Secretary of Iran's Supreme National Security Council Ali Shamkhani explained why Leader of the Islamic Revolution Ayatollah Seyed Ali Khamenei gave a response to former US president Barack Obama, but Donald Trump does not merit any exchange of messages.

In an op-ed article, Shamkhani provided reasons why Ayatollah Khamenei had responded to a letter from Obama, but sees no merit in exchanging any messages with Trump, although the US government's deceptive nature and hostility towards Iran have been the same under all White House rulers. "By trampling on all international norms and law, Trump is trying to portray himself as an international racketeer whose behavior is unpredictable, and believes that he can infringe on the Iranian nation's rights with such method," the top security official wrote. Although Trump has met some of his financial objectives and fulfilled his sense of self-importance in dealing with some low-level wealthy states of the Persian Gulf, his policies have created a lot of challenges in the international arena, he added. Shamkhani concluded that Ayatollah Khamenei's different reactions to the former and incumbent US presidents reflect Iran's logic of "courtesy for courtesy" and the policy of humiliating the bullies. The Leader's reaction also highlights Iran's unchanging policy of independence of vote and continuation of active resistance, he noted. Prime Minister of Japan Shinzo Abe visited Iran on June 12 and met with Ayatollah Khamenei to relay a message from Trump. In response, Ayatollah Khamenei told Abe, "We have no doubts about your goodwill and seriousness, but with regard to what you relayed from the US president, I see no merit in Trump as a person to deserve the exchange of any messages, and I do not have any answer for him and will not give him any either."

Very complicated and suspicious conditions exist in the region; Iran's defence minister

The United States is trying to create "Iran phobia", Iran's defence minister Amir Hatami said to ILNA news agency. Iran's defence minister refers to this idea that Americans doing some activities for creating another 11 September, and confirmed that very complicated and suspicious conditions exist in the region. He added, "It seems that all of this is in line with an overall policy for creating Iran phobia and creating a consensus against the Islamic Republic." "Unfortunately, Saudi Arabia stand blindly along Washington in all different areas and they do not even consider their own interests in this regards," Amir Hatami said. The Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps said it had brought down the Global Hawk surveillance aircraft as it was "violating Iranian air space" over the waters of Hormozgan province.

Trump Says Does Not Want War with Iran

"I'm not looking to do that," he said of going to war during an excerpt of an interview with NBC released Friday.

Trump tweeted Friday morning that he called off the attack 10 minutes before the strike after "a general" told him that 150 people would likely be killed.

In the same sit-down, the US president also said he is willing to talk with Iran without any preconditions. The president's comments come the same day he announced that he abruptly canceled an attack on Iran after the Islamic Revolution Guards Corps (IRGC) shot down an intruding US drone on Thursday after it violated the country's airspace. Trump tweeted Friday morning that he called off the attack 10 minutes before the strike after "a general" told him that 150 people would likely be killed. Later in the day, spokesman for the Iranian Supreme National Security Council (SNSC) said Iran would respond firmly to any US aggression should it retaliate.

"The Iranian Armed Forces defended the airspace of the country and responded to the American drone's aggression according to their inherent mission," Keyvan Khosravi told the Russian-language Sputnik.

The US has no justification for acting against Iran over the drone's downing, he said, adding that the Islamic Republic is fully prepared to respond to any other act of aggression decisively. The IRGC said on Thursday that a US spy drone that violated the Iranian territorial airspace in the early hours of the day was shot down by the IRGC Aerospace Force's air defense unit near the Kooch-e-Mobarak region in the southern province of Hormozgan. The intruding drone was shot by Iran's homegrown air defense missile system "Khordad-3".

Iran parliament to discuss violating Iranian airspace by US drone

Deputy head of Iran parliament national security and foreign policy commission said on Saturday that MPs are supposed to review US spy drone violation of Iran's airspace.

Earlier, Iran has protested to the Swiss envoy in Tehran who represents the United States interests in Iran, over the violation of its airspace by a US drone which Iranian forces shot down.

Kamal Dehqani Firouzabadi slammed US act, saying members of parliament will debate the US provocative acts in the region.

Iranian lawmakers will review US violation of Iran's territorial waters, other countries like UAE giving airbase for the flight of the reconnaissance mission of the Unmanned Air Vehicle, he said. Iran has lodged complaint with the UN Security Council against the United States for violating airspace of the Islamic Republic of Iran. Shooting the US drone has made others aware of the fact that Iran skies is under the control of armed forces and no one will be able to take such measures against Iran. At the early hours of Thursday, the Islamic Revolution Guard Corps (IRGC) air force shot down an American spy drone, identified as RQ-4 Global Hawk that had violated Iranian airspace in the Kuh Mobarak (Mobarak Mountain) region located at Hormuzgan province, south of the country, the IRGC's public relations department said in a statement.

RQ-4s typically fly at high altitude to conduct reconnaissance missions.

Tensions between Iran and the US increased following US breach of the nuclear deal and re-imposing wrongful sanctions in total disregard of the UN Security Council Resolution 2231.

Earlier, Iran has protested to the Swiss envoy in Tehran who represents the United States interests in Iran, over the violation of its airspace by a US drone which Iranian forces shot down.

During the meeting, the Foreign Ministry director general for Americas Mohsen Baharvand submitted an official written protest to the Swiss diplomat in which he voiced his protest to the intrusion of a US drone into Iranian airspace. Markus Leitner as the ambassador of Switzerland represents Washington's interests in Iran in the absence of an official US embassy in the country.

Baharvand said Iran held Washington responsible for the outcomes of such provocative actions.

He offered the Swiss diplomat more details information on the US drone intrusion, including the exact geographical location where it was hit by the Iranian forces within Iran's territory and said that parts of the drone have also been discovered in the Iranian territorial waters.

General Warns US of Heavy Costs of Striking Iran

A senior spokesman for the General Staff of the Iranian Armed Forces warned the US against the mistake of taking military action on Iran, saying any attack will draw Tehran's crushing response, cost the US dearly, and blow up a powder keg in the region.

In an interview with Tasnim, Brigadier General Abolfazl Shekarchi reiterated that the Islamic Republic will never be the first side to start a war, but the enemy's slightest mistake will draw a revolutionary response from Iran in West and Central Asia from which the attackers would not survive.

"Threat for threat means that if the enemy fires a single bullet, it will receive 10 bullets and have to pay a heavy cost," he added, warning that any act of aggression against Iran will draw such a "historic response" that would make the assailants regret their move.

The general also noted that the Iranian Armed Forces hold regular war games and drills to maintain military preparedness for "dealing the heaviest blow to the enemy and its interests" in case of any possible attack.

The Iranian Armed Forces are closely monitoring the US moves, General Shekarchi noted, adding, "A military mistake from the enemy, particularly from the US and its regional allies, will be tantamount to firing at a powder keg on which are the US and its interests, and it will set the region ablaze and burn up the US, its interests, and its allies."

The comments came after the Islamic Revolution Guards Corps (IRGC) said on Thursday that a US spy drone that violated the Iranian territorial airspace in the early hours of the day was shot down by the IRGC Aerospace Force's air defense unit near the Kooch-e-Mobarak region in the southern province of Hormozgan.

The intruding drone was reportedly shot by Iran's homegrown air defense missile system "Khordad-3rd". Iranian military and political officials have repeatedly warned the White House rulers against the dire consequences of a military action against the Islamic Republic.

In comments in April 2018, Leader of the Islamic Revolution Ayatollah Seyed Ali Khamenei said the US is aware of the crushing response it will have to face in case of taking military action against Iran.

The era of hit and run is now over, and the US knows that if it gets entangled in military action against Iran, it will receive much harsher blows, Ayatollah Khamenei underlined.

The US is seeking a way to evade the costs of standing against Iran and place them on regional countries, the Leader said, reminding certain regional countries that if they confront Iran, "they will definitely suffer blows and defeat."

UN Security Council to discuss Iran at US request on Monday

The UN Security Council is scheduled to hold a closed-door meeting on Iran on Monday afternoon following a request from the US mission, a UN spokesperson said, Trend reports citing Sputnik.

"At 3:00 p.m. [EST, 7:00 p.m. GMT], the Security Council will meet for closed consultations on the Middle East", the program said.

Earlier on Friday, a diplomatic source said that the mission of the United States to the UN had requested to hold the meeting to discuss the attacks on oil tankers in the Gulf of Oman and Iran's downing of a US navy surveillance drone.

On Thursday, the Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps (IRGC) said that they shot down a US surveillance drone that had violated Iran's airspace, an assertion denied by Washington.

US President Donald Trump said Friday that the United States had been ready to retaliate with military force over the downed drone, but stopped a strike shortly before it was about to happen as the response would not be "proportionate".
